BETHEL AND VICINITY

Hannah Morgan, a former resident of Bethel, passed away at the home of a niece, Mr. and Mrs. Cole, after a long period of illness.

Morgan was born in Bethel, August 8, 1839, the daughter of S. and Eliza Jackson. She was a native of Bethel and lived here for many years.

Her husband, Leroy Morgan, died in 1900. She was survived by several children and grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at the home of her niece, Mr. and Mrs. Cole, on Friday, April 6, at 2 o'clock p.m.

Interment will be in the Bethel cemetery.

ANDERSON PLAYERS APPEAR IN BETHEL

Will Present "Mary Made Some Marmalade" for the Legion Auxiliary Next Friday

The American Legion Auxiliary of Bethel will sponsor a performance of the drama "Mary Made Some Marmalade," at Odeon Hall, Bethel, Friday Evening, April 7. The Anderson Players of Norway, under the personal direction of H. A. Anderson, are the performers.

While the title of the show tends to detract from the idea of modern drama the theme has all the appeal of popular demand. The cast of twelve people, six men and six women, has been carefully selected for the several parts, and introduces several characters who have not appeared here before. "Mary Made Some Marmalade" received more flattering praise than any drama which has been presented in Norway since "Turn to the Right," and special stress was laid upon the variety of character portrayals, and the versatility demanded in the lines and situations.

Dominant emotions received a jolt as the audience laughed, cried, and sympathized with the several characters.

A unique feature is the roles of Mr. and Mrs. William Tidling, played by Mr. Anderson and Esther Tower Anderson. Mrs. Anderson will be remembered as the well known dramatic reader, teacher of elocution, and contralto soloist, and now appears in a lovable mother interpretation.

Special mention should be made of the youngest member of the cast, Wilfred Conary, Jr. Mr. Conary is sixteen years of age, a junior in Norway High School, but as a high schooler he is a high schooler.

JAMES B. PERKINS

BANK COMMISSIONER APPOINTS PERKINS AS LEGAL ADVISOR

James B. Perkins of Boothbay Harbor, candidate in the primaries for Governor, has been named legal advisor by State Bank Commissioner Sanger Annis to assist in straightening out the affairs of banks requiring special attention. Provision for the appointment was made in the emergency bank bill recently passed by the Legislature which gives the commissioner power to restrict the business of any or all banks. The appointee's compensation is to be furnished by the banks in trouble.

Mrs. Earl Cummings and three children of Rumford are visiting her mother, Mrs. Wallace P. Clark. Merle Conner, while sliding on the Bethel Inn links, narrowly escaped drowning when her sled broke through the crust over Mill brook and precipitated her into the water.

Mrs. R. R. Tibbets, Ashby, Mary, and Margaret Tibbets, and Mrs. Tibbets' mother, Mrs. Ashby, went to Portland Monday where Mrs. Ashby will remain, after spending several weeks in town with her daughter and family.

The Easy Aces were entertained at the home of Mrs. Laurence Lord in Gilead Friday evening. Cards were enjoyed, Mrs. Olive Lurvey winning high score and Mrs. Elsie Davis low. Refreshments of sandwich loaf, cake and coffee were served.

The Essex perambulated to Bethel Saturday afternoon bearing the Messrs. Freeland Clark, "Stubby" Wheeler, and Gordon Lathrop. The party had supper in the 5 & 10. Freeland got the first name of a good looking blond, "Stubby" got all he could eat, and the "Finger Points" spent a cent to find out he was losing weight.

Students spending the vacation at their homes here include: Ernest Brown, Fryeburg; Philip Carter, Worcester Academy; Katherine Carter, Simmons College; John Twaddle, Hebron; Herbert Rowe, U. of M.; Robert Littlehale, Springfield College; William Wight, U. of M.; Mary Thurston, Nassau Institute; Ashby Tibbets, Bowdoin College; Kathryn Herrick, Colby College.

W. L. Benn was given a birthday party at his home Saturday evening. Cards were enjoyed followed by refreshments, including two birthday cakes. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Grover, Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Sawin, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Kimball, Walter Bartlett, Mrs. Mary Brooks, Merle Swan, Mrs. Bernice Heath, Mrs. Edith Hutchinson and Mrs. Gladys Bean.

MAIN STREET BARN COLLAPSES FROM ACTION OF SNOW

Snow melting on the roof of the age-weakened barn belonging to Dr. W. R. Chapman which sets back from the street between Clarence Hall's Barber Shop and Dr. R. R. Tibbets, contributed to the collapse of the roof and parts of the outside walls late Tuesday afternoon. The structure in its early existence was used as a public livery. In later years the barn served as home for the horses of the tenants in the adjoining building. It has been in unsound condition and unoccupied for some time.

"BETHEL MUSICIANS" STUDY BRAHMS

The "Bethel Musicians," with their leader, Miss Daisy Chase, met at Mrs. Greenleaf's, Mar. 28, from 4 to 5 o'clock, with an attendance of eighteen.

They opened with their club song; then came the business meeting after which the chosen composer for the month—Brahms—was studied, Miss Chase giving a short sketch of his life and, as is the custom at each meeting, showing his picture to each club member.

The "memory contest" was omitted as a musical play is under way and this was its first rehearsal. Master Bobby Greenleaf played "Fairy Moonlight" very well, delighting all members of the club. A social time was enjoyed and then a jolly song to the tune of "Hog's Bells" ended the hour.

A musical quotation will be given at each meeting and 'tis hoped the musical scrap books will be well started by the next meeting which will be held at Mrs. Greenleaf's Tuesday, April 25. The composer to be studied will be Chaminade.

HANNO A. PACKARD

BETHEL MAN HAS LED VARIED LIFE

H. A. Packard's Experiences of Interest to Bethel People.

The following story of the experiences of one of Bethel's prominent citizens will interest many of the Citizen's readers, who, though they have known Mr. Packard for many years, are probably unacquainted with many of the interesting events of his varied career.

Hanno A. Packard was born in Paris, Maine, October 23, 1862, the son of Stephen and Louisa B. Packard. He was next to the youngest of a family of fifteen children, all of whom have passed away except Mr. Packard and two sisters, Mrs. Jennie Coffin of Worcester, Mass., aged 83 years, and Mrs. Abbie Barton of Cornish, Maine, aged 77 years. He was educated in the schools of Paris and Monmouth.

Mr. Packard is the great great grandson of Daniel Packard, who served as "matron" in artillery during the Revolutionary War, being in the battles of Ticonderoga, White Plains, Stony Point, and Monmouth. After the war he settled in Backfield. A full account of his

ASSESSORS' NOTICE

The Assessors of the Town of Bethel hereby give notice to all persons liable to taxation in said Town, that they will be in session at Selectmen's Office in said Town on the first day of April, at 10 o'clock in forenoon for the purpose of receiving lists of polls and estates taxable in said town.

All such persons are hereby notified to make and bring to the Assessors true and perfect lists of their polls and all their estates, real and personal, not by law exempt from taxation, which they were possessed of, or which they held as guardian, executor, administrator, trustee or otherwise on the 1st day of April, 1933, and be prepared to make oath to the truth of the same.

When estates of persons deceased have been divided during the past year, or have changed hands from any cause, the executor, administrator or other persons interested are warned to give notice of such change, and in default of such notice will be held under the law to pay the tax assessed although such estate has been wholly distributed and paid over.

Any person who neglects to comply with this notice will be DOOMED to a tax according to the laws of the State and be barred of the right to make application to the Assessors or County Commissioners for any abatement of his taxes, unless he offers such list with his application and satisfies them that he was unable to offer it at the time hereby appointed.

VILLAGE CORP. VOTES TO ADOPT SMALLER LIGHTS

At the adjourned meeting of the Bethel Village Corporation Monday evening, it was decided to replace the 600 watt bulbs now in use on Main Street with 400 watt bulbs; and to use 40 watt lights in the other streets instead of 60 watt as at present. There was little discussion after this plan was presented and a show of hands left no doubt of the opinion of the majority, although there were numerous dissenting votes.

DEBATE TO FEATURE EASTERN STAR MEETING

Attention, Eastern Stars! The regular meeting of the order will be held April 5th and you won't want to miss it. Don't bother to change your house dress or working clothes, for this is to be a poverty party, and no dress suits or silk gowns allowed. The refreshments will be plentiful but plain, served at 6:30 p. m.

The great feature of the evening will be a debate on a subject of vital interest. From authentic reports it is reasonably certain that this debate will equal in eloquence the Lincoln-Douglas debates, also the reasoning and logic of the Bryan-Darrow controversies. Mrs. Agnes Twaddle and Mrs. Elsie Davis will argue for the affirmative; Mr. Boyker and Mr. H. C. Rowe will uphold the negative.

VARIETY SHOWER

Fourteen friends of Miss Emily Clemens gathered at the home of Mrs. Wallace Clark Wednesday evening where a variety shower had been arranged for Miss Clemens by Mrs. Clark and Miss Dorothea Burbank in honor of her approaching marriage to Addison Saunders of Hanover. Songs were sung and refreshments of cake, fancy cookies, sandwiches, and coffee were served. Miss Clemens was the recipient of many gifts.

FARM BUILDINGS BURNED

Fire which started around the chimney of the camp of Lyman Wheeler Wednesday afternoon, destroyed that building and a large barn. The camp was occupied by Harry and Henry Brown. The loss is estimated at $1000, with no insurance.

Dr. William R. Chapman left Bethel on Wednesday for a short visit to New York.

Laxative Worm Expeller

Mrs. Connelley's Daughter
"My neighborhood druggist recommended Dr. True's Elixir to me. I purchased a bottle and gave some to my little girl. I consider it unequalled as a children's laxative, regulator and worm expeller, and recommend it to all mothers. Signs of Worms: Reddish face, itchy, itchy stomach, restlessness, upper lip, offensive breath, hard and full stomach. Successfully used for 12 years."

WHY I BELIEVE IN CHRIST

Because His history was written before He was born and because this prophecy was fulfilled in Him. Because the Bible has proved its truth, and because He is its center and circumference. Because of the voice of God acknowledging Him. His son. Because of the supreme sacrifice He made for the race that despised and executed Him. Because of His resurrection which as well established as any other fact in history. Because Saul who hated him, Peter who denied him, and Thomas who doubted him, and all gave their lives at last in defense of their faith in him. As last of all, but no less convincing my own experience of Christ as personal saviour. His spirit bears witness with our spirits that we are sons of God. If you would know His doctrine, do his will, reveals himself to his own as does not to the world. Abstract confidence in him has no value. The whole value of intellectual faith is derived from the course of action it inspires. Do his will and he will reveal himself to you.

School at the homes of different members during the winter months has been much enjoyed by the parents and pupils.

THE KNIGHT'S TOAST

The feast is o'er! Now brimming wine, lordly cup is seen to shine before each eager guest; in silence fills the crowded hall deep as when the heralds call thrills in the loyal breast.

Up arose the noble host, smiling, cried, "A toast! to all our ladies fair! before all I pledge the name, Staunton's proud and beautiful dame—

The Lady Gundamere."

Then to his feet each gallant sprung, joyous was the shout that rang.

Stanley gave the word; every cup was raised on high, ceased the loud and glad some cry, all Stanley's voice was heard, lady's grace or beauty praised, for constancy and fame.

Now St. Leon's turn to rise; him are fixed those countless eyes; a gallant knight is he; and by some, admired by all, famed in lady's bower and hall— The flower of chivalry.

Leon raised his kindling eye, and lifts the sparkling cup on high; "I drink to one," he said, "whose image never may depart, whose graven on this grateful heart, all memory be dead;—

one whose love for me shall last, whose lighter passions long have past;— so holy 'tis and true; one whose love hath longer dwelt, more deeply fixed, more keenly felt, than any pledged by you."

His guest started at the word, and laid his hand upon his sword, with fury-flashing eye; Stanley said, "We crave the name, and knight, of this most peerless dame, whose love you count so high."

Leon paused as if he would breathe her name in careless mood, then lightly to another; bent his noble head, as though give that word the reverence

Don't Try To Beat The Red Light

By E. RAYMOND CATO
(Chief of the California Highway Patrol)

DON'T TRY TO BEAT THE RED LIGHT! Traffic signals are in operation for your protection. It is your duty and obligation to obey them. If you don't you may be responsible for a serious and even fatal accident.

Automobile collisions at intersections last year cost the lives of 3,599 persons, injured 460,800 others and were responsible for a total of 390,200 accidents, statistics of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters show.

Pedestrians are also frequent violators of intersection crossing rules, according to the records. Twenty-two per cent of all pedestrian accidental deaths, or 3,170, and 99,800 injuries were accounted for at intersections.

It is the driver who sees a favorable signal light come distance off, and then accelerates his speed in an attempt to pass the intersection before the signal changes, who is a dangerous driver. The speed of his car makes it difficult for him to stop if he reaches the intersection after the light changes. Then his chances for causing an accident are immeasurable.

The Modern Municipal Traffic Ordinance drafted by the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety gives expert advice on the problem. It says:

"Whenever traffic at an intersection is controlled by traffic control signals exhibiting colored lights or the words 'Go,' 'Caution' and 'Stop,' said lights and terms shall indicate as follows:

"Green or 'Go'—Traffic facing the signal may proceed, except that vehicular traffic shall yield the right of way to pedestrians and vehicles lawfully within a crosswalk or the intersection at the time such signal was exhibited.

"Yellow or 'Caution'—When shown alone following the green or 'Go'—Traffic facing the signal shall stop before entering the nearest crosswalk at the intersection unless so close to the intersection that a stop cannot be made in safety.

"Red or 'Stop'—Traffic facing the signal shall stop before entering the nearest crosswalk at the intersection or at such other point as may be designated by the (traffic authority), and remain standing until great of 'Go' is shown alone."

DON'T GAMBLE YOUR LIMBS OR YOUR LIFE ON THE CHANCE OF SAVING A MINUTE. OBEY THE TRAFFIC SIGNALS.

It's just because the corners of your mouth turn down. Then take this simple rhyme, Remember it in time: It's always dreary weather, In countryside or town, When you wake and find the corners of your mouth turned down.

If you wake up in the morning full of bright and happy thoughts, And begin to count the blessings in your cup, Then glance into your mirror and you will quickly see

It's all because the corners of your mouth turn up. Then take this little rhyme, Remember all the time: There's joy a-plenty in this world to fill life's silver cup If you'll only keep the corners of your mouth turned up.

WORTH WHILE COMING TO SEE

Thursday and Friday--March 30th and 31st

We have planned an event which we believe is of outstanding interest and importance to the people of Maine.

It is a demonstration of the every day resources of this store in style and value

It will provide an opportunity to see all that is new—all that is authentic in style, whether it be to wear or for the home.

And it will be a practical demonstration of what we have so often said — that P. M. & B. quality merchandise is so low in price and so sound in style that it is foolish and extravagant to buy any other kind!

In order that you may see the new Spring suits, dresses, coats, sportswear, accessories and children's wear to the best advantage, we will show these in a most comprehensive way, on living models.

Thursday morning at 10.15 A. M. Thursday and Friday at 3 P. M.
And Friday evening at 8 P. M.

(And there will be a special show for business girls and women Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at 12.30 P. M.)

There is also a wonderful display for the home

Five great floors filled with quality furniture, Rugs, Linoleums, Wall Papers, Lamps, Draperies, Curtains.
Fine China and Glass, lovely linens and good bedding — in fact every thing conceivable for the home.

All conveniently under one roof and chosen with most careful supervision and co-ordination, they present a harmonious whole that could not be secured in any other way. And prices of this merchandise are so low that it is the height of economy to make your purchases here.

Our newly refurnished Rooms on the Fourth Floor;
our Maple Corner; and our Curtain Row, offer many delightful suggestions.

Our famous Treasure House at 72 and 74 Free Street has been completely redecorated — with its antiques and reproductions — its new showing of the choicest American Furniture — its gift wares — China and Glass — its counterpart is not to be found in all of New England.

This demonstration is also being held to make Maine people more familiar with this complete Maine Store.

As we see it, stores are a good deal like people. They have had their ups and their downs for the last few years. It has been the same with many stores as with many people mostly downs.

This is not true in any way of this store. While we have our share of the troubles that go with these times we believe that in the best of times, we never had as good or complete a store as we have today.

Within the last year we have added two big new floors to our selling space. We have gone all over the store from cellar to roof. We have tried to strengthen the weak places, to improve the strong and we will admit that we are very proud of the results. We honestly believe that there is no store in or out of Maine that is as well prepared to serve our Northern New England people in every way as we are today!

While we would be delighted to have you trade with us exclusively, we believe that first consideration should be given to your own home store. But if you can't find what you want — or you wish something that is just a little different, we feel very sure that at most times we will be able to meet your needs.

And please remember, if it isn't convenient for you to shop in person, you can reach us quickly by mail or phone — that we make no charge for delivery — that we have a plan whereby our workmen's costs are on the same basis whether out of the City or in.

P. S. Friday evening, March 31st, we will be open for inspection

*There will be no merchandise sold Friday evening but you will be very welcome.
We trust you will find it well worth your while to visit us March 30th and 31st.*

SOUTH WOODSTOCK

First Sunday in Spring—Warm filled with sunshine. The early birds have arrived and the in-telligents are flying about.

Mrs. Velma Davis spent the week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs.
P. Brown, of Bryant Pond.

The past week we have enjoyed variety of weather conditions:
snow, sleet, hail and sunshine; all necessary remedies of other Nature, to be used for the good of mankind.

Harold Buck of West Paris is asking for Gayden Davis.

Mrs. Angie Robbins entertained Willing Workers at the Anne's home, March 22. A good time was out and though the day side was not pleasant there was a ray of sunshine in Mrs. Abbott.

ident, had charge of the meeting and conducted most impressive. Bible verses are a feature many had committed them to memory for the program, which is commendable. Mrs. Velma Davis, chairman of the quilt committee

all engaged in sewing patchwork, four triangular pieces to form the squares. Sandwiches, cake and coffee with most delicious samples were served the guests.

Mrs. Robbins was assisted by her daughter, Miss Gertrude Robbins.
Last week we told you about our lightful sliding parties by moonlight at "Davis Corner," South Woodstock. This week we tell you of a bad accident here which opened to several who were sliding without the light of the friendly moon. Sled load after sled load on the trip successfully, much enjoying the thrill thus obtained.

Sudden screams of pain rent the air. An accident had happened!

Injured were Mrs. Maxell, wife
Rev. Maxell of West Paris, suffering from fright and severe local injury; Frederick Briggs of West Paris, injured arm and facial lacerations; another party suffering inward stomach pain; and Stanley travels suffering from dislocation left shoulder. Dr. Kay of West Paris treated the accident victims.

ordered an x-ray for Stanley.
The sled was taken Saturday morning, March 25, following the accident of Friday night, showing dis-location but no bones broken.

In the early morning of March Francis Johnson, who is making his home at the Davis homestead, took a hike to the high hills on a long slide. The place was to the young man and on his return he was asked by the family what he had been and what he had done. From his coat pocket he took a scrap of paper and said, "Can tell from these?" "Capt. Samuel Stephens, Died Oct. 25, 1857,

Age 50. His wife, Died July 23,
Age 50. "This," he said, "I copied from these." "Crosby Curtis, Died March

BETHEL MAN HAS LED

A VARIED LIFE

life is given in the History of Buckfield.

Being the youngest boy in the family, Hanno remained on his father's farm until he was 21 years old. At that time he felt that it was time for him to start out for himself and went to Buffalo, N. Y., where he was engaged in bridge construction work on the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad, the building of which was being completed into that city at the time. After spending a year in this work he resigned from the company and went to Elmira, N. Y., where he was engaged as a guard at the New York State Reformatory. This institution was the only one of its kind in the United States at that time, and since that time there has been but one built like it, at Concord, Mass. He had charge of the outside gate at this institution. After serving less than a year, Mr. Packard's ability to handle men was observed and he was promoted to keeper and assigned one of the largest shops in charge of one officer in the prison. At that time prisoners were run under the contract system, outside companies hiring the prisoners and paying the State a fixed price per man. Mr. Packard had the oversight of this shop for several years.

In 1888 Mr. Packard came to Bethel where he purchased a home and has lived the greater part of the time with the exception of five years spent in Portland. Soon after returning to Bethel he was married to Miss Ella Bean of Bethel and four children were born to them. Two died in infancy, and two daughters, Mabel and Ida Packard, both graduates of Gould Academy, are now living. Both are highly respected young ladies and have government positions. Mabel at Utopia Island, Fla., and Ida an clerk in the Bethel postoffice. Mrs. Packard passed away in 1911.

Mr. Packard was employed in the J. P. Shillings factory for eight years as spool colorer, and is said to have been the first man to color Mite-End spools without crocking.

In 1907 Mr. Packard bought out the undertaking business of Everett Staples and continued in this profession until 1912. He served the town as constable for many years and also as police of the Village Corporation. He has also been game warden and was coroner until that position was abolished.

Mr. Packard is a practical nurse, having worked in Bethel and surrounding towns and for two years in Portland under the late Dr. King, and for some time as nurse at the Keely Institute in Portland.

When the World War broke out, Mr. Packard went to Elmira, N. Y., where he was engaged for some time in a munitions factory, finally returning to Portland where he was engaged as shell inspector by the Portland Company. This company manufactured a six inch shell for the British government.

In 1919 Mr. Packard married Mrs. Ellen Tripp of Portland. Mrs. Packard being a fine cook, since that time Mr. and Mrs. Packard have spent eight years as cooks at some of the larger secondary schools. For the last two years, up to last September, they have been employed at a private residence near Portland. On account of Mr. Packard's ill health they returned to Bethel last fall, and during the winter they have been living in town.

MANUAL TRAINING EXHIBIT

ATTRACTED GOOD CROWD

The annual exhibit of the work of students in the Manual Training course at Gould Academy attracted a large number of parents and interested citizens last Thursday afternoon. The work displayed ranged from coat hangers to a library table and the fine workmanship showed the result of the interest and application of both pupils and teacher. A new feature this year was the wood turning department, where was shown the work done by upper classmen on the lathe installed last fall. Many useful articles were shown here. A visit to the annual exhibition should be made by all interested in the school in order to become better acquainted with the practical instruction offered in the course.

By Octavus Roy Cohen

SYNOPSIS

His story started March 16th in the scene of the story is Marland in the South. In the first instalments we have met Annette "Tony" Peyton who disdained Pat Thayer, another student making love to Ivy Welch, a girl who is in love with Tony. Tony demands that Thayer leave alone and Pat refuses despite Tony's threat to tell what she has about him. Tony goes to Welch. Pat consoles a tearful Ivy and on their way out of the room they run into Max Vernon, Tony's room-mate, who has discovered that Thayer has hooked up his money at cards and now taken Ivy Welch, his girl, away from him. There is a scene in which Thayer threatens to kill Thayer. As an instalment opens Tony Peyton trying to get Larry Welch to listen seriously to her. Larry would make love to her.

and I thought I'd better come to you first."

For the moment his thoughts were all of the kid sister whom he adored.

"What's wrong, Tony?"

She met his eyes levelly.

"How do you like Pat Thayer?"

He hesitated, and shook his head.

"Not particularly," he admitted.

"He isn't the sort of man you'd pick for Ivy, is he?"

"No-o. Not if I were doing the picking."

"Well—Ivy is in love with him!"

"With Pat Thayer?"

"Yes. And she thinks she is engaged to him."

He took Tony's arm and leaned close. "Is that what has been worrying you, Tony? Is that what you came here to see me about?"

"Yes."

And quite suddenly he threw back his head and laughed. He laughed softly, but with tremendous relief.

"Gosh! What a goose you are! Ivy's nobody's fool. She can take care of herself."

Tony bit her lip. She spoke in a hard little voice.

"You refuse to worry about it, Larry?"

"Sure, I do. Even my sister has got to cut her eyeteeth some time, and so—"

The color drained from the girl's cheeks.

"I'm afraid, then," she said in a hard little voice, "that I've got to tell you more than I intended."

She hesitated, but only for a second. Then, without looking at her companion, she told of the scene in the Bower-of Pat Thayer and Ivy Welch, of her intrusion and of the bitterness which had followed.

Larry listened attentively, reserving comment. He was more concerned about Tony than about his sister.

"You're worried about Ivy?" he asked, when she had finished.

"Yes."

"Because Pat Thayer doesn't seem to be the right sort of fellow?"

"It's because I know he isn't."

He shook his head and a slow, tolerant smile played about his lips.

"I'm afraid you're not fair to Thayer," he said. "We understand, of course, that ugly rumors followed him to Marland. But nothing was ever substantiated. Now listen, Tony, I'm going to be honest with you. I think you've gone off the deep end. We're friends and Ivy is my sister. You forget that she's a kid girl just like any one of a hundred other freshmen coeds. Perhaps it's better that she picked a man like Pat Thayer for her first love affair. I reckon every girl has to go through that once—an infatuation for a man older than herself. I'll admit frankly that I don't know anything about him, and—"

"How has he been living since he came to Marland?" she questioned abruptly.

Larry frowned. "You mean the Max Vernon thing?"

"Exactly. It's common knowledge, Larry, that Thayer has bled Vernon of every cent he had. They've played cards for big money . . . and Max has lost."

Have you watched that kid in the past few months? Up to last fall you never saw him that he wasn't grinning. But now . . . he's older, and he's serious. Every one knows that he's broke."

"Isn't that Vernon's lookout? But you're accepting rumor as fact. We don't know that Pat has been trimming Vernon."

"Trimming! Stealing his money, you mean. Of course, we don't know it. But the whole college is pretty sure. And now he's gone out after Ivy. He seems to take a perverse delight in making Vernon miserable now that he's got his money. Max is crazy about Ivy."

"Sure he is. And he's a nice kid. But I've got no right to tell my sister whom she shall run with. She's got a good head on her shoulders, Tony; a darned good head. I'm fond of her and I think she likes me pretty well. But she wouldn't stand for it a minute if I chased after her telling her what she must and mustn't do. Now listen—"

He faced her once again and took one of her hands in his: "Something has run off with your nanny. You've magnified nothing into something terrible . . . and you're all wrong. I don't hold any brief for Thayer, but I do say that until we know something we have no right to butt into his relationships with any girl on the campus—even if that girl is Ivy. Let's forget it, Tony."

She rose and walked to the window. Her figure was outlined in the brilliant sunlight and Larry Welch stared at her curiously.

Here was a girl he didn't know at all; a girl gripped by a resentment which he could not understand.

Tony looked out across the campus. It was all so peaceful and quiet; the stage was so magnificently set for gentle romance unclouded by grimaces. And yet . . .

Oh! Larry was right not to understand. He was a generous person who had the faculty of looking at things through the other fellow's eyes. She knew that he didn't like Thayer. It was equally certain that Larry could not be inclined to action by mere conjecture or rumor. Tony Peyton left the window suddenly and returned to Larry. She stood before him, slim and determined, and something in her manner caused him to rise from his seat. He waited for her to speak, his face grave. And when she did her words startled him.

"Larry," she said in a voice a little above a whisper, "you've often told me that you love me. Do you?"

His face flamed and, impulsively, his arms went out toward her . . . then he dropped again.

"I love you, Tony."

She looked at him. There was no sign of color in her cheeks.

"I will tell you something I have never said before, Larry. I love you. . . . No!" as he impulsively stepped close to her. "Don't touch me—please! Not now. I'm not finished."

"But you do love me . . . ?"

"Yes. I wonder that you haven't known it. I wonder that you haven't seen it in every look and word that has passed between us. You have; haven't you?"

"I have hoped," he said humbly. "But when one cares for a girl as I do for you, dear . . . is it because you do care, Tony, that you've worried about Ivy?"

"Yes. And it's more than that. She made a helpless little gesture. "You see, Larry, I had hoped to get you to put a stop to the affair without forcing me to say what I have to. There is something I didn't want to tell you—"

"Don't you tell me a thing you don't want, Tony."

A wistful little smile played fully about her lips.

"This time I have to. Perhaps I'm glad . . . I guess I've sounded rather ridiculous and catty. I shouldn't wonder but that you're somewhat disgusted with me."

He laughed shakily. "I'm only thinking of one thing . . . what you just told me."

"I'm thinking of that, too, Larry. I haven't thought about anything else for a long time."

She stopped talking. Her hands were tightly clasped. Then she stepped very close and looked levelly into his eyes.

"You've known for a long time that I loved you, Larry. I know I've never said it in so many words, but you've known it just the same. Have you ever wondered, dear, why—loving you I would never consent to marry you?"

He shook his head slowly.

"I've never dared wonder that far, Tony. I've been too busy wondering and wondering about whether you cared."

"I do care. You know it now. And yet, saying that—I tell you in the same breath that I can't marry you. Now do you wonder why?"

"Yes," he answered quietly. "I do."

For a long time she did not speak. She felt like a woman about to plunge from a great height. Then she told him—with a rush of words which hurt and which required sheer physical courage.

"Larry," she said steadily, "the reason I cannot marry you is because Pat Thayer is my husband."

An expression of utter bewilderment crossed Larry's face. He understood the girl's words without being able immediately to grasp their significance.

And then he understood more poignantly than ever before just how much he loved this slender, level-eyed girl. His blue eyes sought her black ones to exchange a message of frank and unshaken love. Then it seemed that a sinister shadow came between them—a shadow very real to any man and woman in a like situation, but starkly tragic to persons as young and filled with the passion of life as these two.

Pat Thayer's wife. She belonged to Thayer. She was married to the man about whose commanding and exotic and highly unpleasant personality there existed unsavory rumors.

Tony looked at him compassionately. She suffered because she had hurt him, yet she felt a sense of infinite relief that she had elected to share her burden. She saw Larry's blond head move slowly from side to side as though he were struggling to understand what it meant; striving to peer into the future and reconstruct his dreams. The girl took his hand in both of hers and gazed straight into his eyes.

"I'm married to Pat," she said quietly, and her cheeks were crimson; "but I've never been his wife."

He drew in his breath sharply. "You mean, Tony—"

"Just that, Larry. There has never been anything between Pat and myself except a ceremony."

A great load lifted from the heart of the young man. He dared a question.

"Do you love him?"

Her eyes widened.

"I despise him."

And young Mr. Welch threw back his head and smiled.

"Gosh!" he said. "That makes me happy. When you told me he was your husband I felt sick all over. Now it doesn't seem important. Not a bit. Oh! I know I'm silly, but it seems as though everything can be adjusted if it's true that you hate him."

"It's true all right enough." Then she covered her voice. "Can't you understand now why I worried for Ivy when I saw her in his arms? Don't you see how different it is? I happened to know that Pat Thayer is legally married. That being the case, it isn't exactly fair to Ivy to permit the thing to continue, is it?"

"Scarcely." A new and square set came to his jaw. "I'll have to fix things. . . . I sure will." He was silent for a moment, then seated himself again. "Sit down, Tony."

She was glad enough to obey. She was glad he took her hand and spoke in a gentle, understanding voice.

"Can you tell me all about it, Tony?"

She nodded.

"When did it happen?"

She answered without turning. "Last year—November, 1927."

"Where?"

"Nashville. When the team went up to play Vanderbilt."

"I see. . . . You hadn't known Thayer very long then."

"No. He had only been in college two months. The whole campus was wild about him. I was a year and a half younger than I am now. From the day he arrived at Marland the girls were all crazy about him. He seemed to have singled me out for his particular attention—"

"I remember," said Larry grimly. "I sure do!"

"I was flattered. I ran around with him a good deal. He took me to lots of dances. . . . I wasn't with you much then, Larry. You were on the team and Coach had you training pretty hard, and you were always making up classes you had missed on football trips. Anyway, I was just a silly kid. That's why I know how Ivy feels right now . . . she regards Pat Thayer pretty much as I did for awhile; not in love with him nearly so much as she's dazzled by his manner and experience."

"Anyway, I knew I was flattered because the most picturesque man on the campus had chosen me. I liked to be with him . . . and for a while I was fond of him. He can be pretty charming if he wants to. Looking back on it, I know it was a kid infatuation with no more depth than the water in a child's bowl."

Her voice trailed off, and when he did not speak, she continued.

"I'm trying very hard to make you see through my eyes as they were then, Larry, trying to make you understand me as I was, rather than as I am. What the Annette Peyton of November 1927 did would be impossible for the Tony of May, 1929. Do you understand?"

"Sure, do ahead."

She drew a long breath.

"The girls all envied me. I was silly enough to let my head get turned by that, too. See, I'm not sparing myself at all. And then came the game with Vandy I went and so did Pat."

"You don't know much about that day, Larry, because you were with the team all the time. But we did it. I went to the game with Pat, and you remember what happened there. Our last minute rally that tied the score. Marland had tied one of the greatest teams in the southern conference . . . and done it for the first time in history. It was an intoxication. Everything was wonderful . . . and now you can get ready to laugh at me. Now you're going to learn what an idiot I am."

"Well," he prompted. "What?"

"Pat Thayer proposed to me during the last five minutes of that football game. Larry. He kept insisting that Marland was going to tie the score and I kept saying that we weren't trying to bring us good luck by talking like a jinx. I'll bet we tie to win," said Pat. "We won't!"

I answered. "I know we haven't a chance." "You're not game to bet," he taunted. "Of course I said I was. Then he leaned so close that no body else could hear and whispered to me: 'Let's see how game you are, Tony. If Marland gets as good as a tie out of this, you're to marry me right after the game.' 'Don't be silly,' I said, and he insisted that he was serious. 'And you'd better say yes quick, Tony—or I'll jinx the whole team.'"

She looked away, and there was a tremor in her voice.

"You can't understand it now, Larry. There's no use trying to make you understand."

"I do, though."

"You don't! You can't! It isn't possible—sitting here in your classroom, looking over a period of eighteen months and trying to make a person understand how a kid girl could get drunk with football excitement and plunge into a serious thing like marriage. It isn't sane. And it isn't reasonable to expect you to understand something which I myself can't fathom now."

"Just the same," he said gently, "I do understand."

Greek Myth of Flood Is Similar to Noah and Ark

The mythology of the Greeks contains a story of a great flood which bears considerable resemblance to the flood story of the Christian Bible. It centers about a character known as Deucalion and his wife Pyrrha. Deucalion, a son of Prometheus, was favored of Zeus and was chosen by the god to repopulate the earth after the Greek race should be destroyed by a great flood.

Forewarned by Zeus of the impending flood, Deucalion constructed a large boat or ark upon which he and his wife rode to safety during the days of the flood. The Greek flood, however, lasted but nine days, although during that period it covered the land and wiped out the entire population. After the water had subsided, so the myth goes, the ark landed on Mount Parnassus.

Deucalion and Pyrrha were then instructed by the Goddess Themis to repopulate the earth by casting behind them the bones of their mother. This they did, symbolically, by casting behind them the stones of mother earth. From these came the Hellenes; from the stones cast by Deucalion sprang up men and from those cast by Pyrrha sprang up women. — Washington Star.

Dr. Mitchell of the State Department of Health stated Tuesday that a State-wide quarantine of dogs might be necessary to check the spread of rabies. Cases of rabies have been found in Fairfield, Waterville, Benton, Canaan and Norridgewock, and cases have been reported from other places.

GOINGS ON IN MAINE

By Leon G. Cates

Another week has passed into history and still the Legislature has practically the same important measures before them for disposition as they had last week at this time. None of the important bills mentioned in last week's summary were taken care of during the week just past. But it is highly probable that all these matters will be voted on this week and the Legislature adjourn on Saturday, April 1st.

One of the biggest pieces of political playing that we have seen in many a legislature is taking place right now. This is the Beer bill. You will recall how quickly the Audet beer bill was voted down early in the legislature. Already there has been a decided change of heart. And a new beer bill, but exactly like the old one, comes to the front, under Republican auspices, and occupies the center of the stage. It all came about because Congress has legalized 3.2% beer, and State after State is falling in line to legalize it in conformity with the National law; and the boys in Augusta are wondering just what is the use of spending upwards of $100,000.00 advertising the glories and splendor of Maine, if the sportsmen and vacationists who come here are not allowed the same freedom in the matter of beer, that they are allowed in other states equally attractive as a Summer or Winter resort as Maine. Do you get the point? If you are ultra-dry you may not get it. Nevertheless, the point is there, and it is a very important point that the Legislature will have to decide on this very week.

Another bill that will pass, unless all signs fail; is the Senator Whetherbee transportation measure—which provides that intoxicating liquors may be transported in Maine legally unless there is an intent to sell them. The Senate has voted "yes" on both of these bills—it is now up to the house. The bill to permit osteopaths to practice in hospitals receiving State aid has been passed in the House and Senate. The emergency clause attached to the bill to cut the salary of State officers and employees, was voted down in the house; so the cut in pay will not become effective until after July 1st of this year.

In Governor Brann's inaugural address, he recommended the passage of a law preventing the pauperization of temporarily unemployed wage earners. Such a bill was presented and 9 of the 10 members of committee reported it "ought to pass"—however, when it came to the Senate, Senator Holman of Franklin, the lone signer of the unfavorable report, argued that people who had fallen "to be thrifty and save their money for such depressions as this" should lose their vote. So the bill was defeated in the Senate 19 to 12.

One of the surprises of last week was the passage, by the House of the Sunday Sports bill. The vote was taken amid a loud chorus of "ayes" which was so strong that the opponents of the bill did not even ask for a division. The bill permits "any outdoor recreation or competitive amateur sport or game, except boxing, horse racing, air circus or wrestling, between the hours of 1 p. m. and 7 p. m. Sundays." It further permits the proprietors of such entertainment to take up collections or charge admission. A local option clause provides that the law shall not be effective until passed upon by the municipal officers or by a town meeting.

The House voted down the Senate proposal to reduce the pay of the members of the Legislature for this session and the next session. It also refused its consent to allow the State Budget Officer, with the advice of the Governor and Executive Council, to pare down any appropriations when funds to meet them were not available. The House voted 79 to 51 to concur with the Senate in acceptance of a majority report of the committee on Inland Fisheries and Game, changing special fishing regulations from public laws to regulations, and giving the commissioner of inland fisheries and game power to make and publish, without notice, rules continuing the provisions.

A bill to establish a 48 hour work week in Maine was indefinitely postponed in the House when its proponents said they had learned the bill was unconstitutional. It doesn't look very favorable for the passage of the General Sales tax bill. This bill would provide for a general sales tax of 1% on all goods sold at retail in Maine, with a $250.00 quarterly exemption. There has been a lot of stiff opposition to the measure; it was reported out from the committee 5 in favor and 5 opposed to its passage; and it has good support in spite of the fact that its passage at this session seems doubtful.

11:00 Morning Worship. The Pastor's subject will be, "Witnesses." This will be the fourth sermon on the subject, "What is it to be a Christian?"

Jesus stood condemned and discredited before the bar of public opinion. Why? Was it not because of the testimony of certain carefully chosen witnesses?

Jesus had healed ten lepers upon one occasion, but only one returned to give thanks. When Jesus was being falsely accused before that mock tribunal where were those whom he had healed and helped?

There is no denying the fact that in certain quarters the church stands discredited. Why? Is it not because you and I remain silent when our testimony would save the situation?

The meeting of the Comrades of the Way will be omitted this week on account of the absence of so many of our members.
